Monobanda is a foundation / art collective, making projects that explore human expression and meaningful interaction.

Our core aesthetic is ‘play’. A state of being that all human beings share, and facilitates our best traits, like creativity, communication, motivation and self confidence. Inspired by the social interactions that are found on a playground or in a sandbox, where creativity and imagination run free, we make projects that inhabit the space between the virtual and physical world.

This means we always try to create experiences where people discover something new about themselves through playful behavior. Something that is always both personal and totally universal.

Our work ranges from commissioned installations and games for musea, festivals and exhibitions, to self initiated projects that can be anything from artworks to applied games. Play is everywhere after all.
